ANTHROPOSOPHIC MEDICINE IN PRACTICE

ANTHROPOSOPHIC MEDICINE is practised by trained physicians and prescribed by more than 30.000 physicians in 18 EU member-states (Austria, Belgium, Czech Republic, Denmark, Eire, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Latvia, the Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Spain, Sweden and the United Kingdom), Norway, Switzerland and in 65 countries around the world.

ANTHROPOSOPHIC HOSPITALS and hospital departments have been established in Italy, Brazil, Germany, the Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

ANTHROPOSOPHIC MEDICINE is regularly taught in the context of CAM at universities in Austria, Germany, the Netherlands, Italy, Latvia, Spain and Switzerland.

ABOUT ANTHROPOSOPHIC MEDICINE

ANTHROPOSOPHIC MEDICINE stimulates the self-healing and regenerative capacity of the human body and invokes restorative processes in the body, particular in the immune system. From the numerous anthroposophic medicinal products, the application of mistletoe preparations in treatment of cancer are a well known example of this approach.

ANTHROPOSOPHIC MEDICINE enhances primary prevention by making awareness and education the highest priorities, for example via lifestyle and nutrition counselling for the prevention of allergies and obesity.

ANTHROPOSOPHIC MEDICINE takes account of the biographical and social aspects of illness, aiming to aid personal development and patient autonomy, and empowering patients to share responsibility for the healing process.

ANTHROPOSOPHIC MEDICINE is practised in all specialist fields including internal medicine, obstetrics, psychiatry, surgery, intensive care and first aids medicine in hospitals (including university teaching hospitals), and in anthroposophic medical departments in hospitals or primary care settings. Anthroposophic medicine combines conventional and holistic anthroposophic modalities.
